Contracts Signed for New 1st National Bank Building

The Board of Directors of the First National Bank announced today the signing of contracts for construction of their new banking home.

Ex-Walker Aide Sacked by Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Arch E. Roberts has been barred from active duty by the Army and ordered back to civilian life for his unauthorized speech before the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The order was handed down Friday by Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr., who said he took the action "because of improper statements made by Maj. Roberts in an unclassified speech."

Roberts said he was surprised and intended to appeal.

"I expected a hearing and I still expect a hearing," declared Roberts. "My position has never been revealed, except to the dear ladies in the DAR, God bless 'em."

The Army said, however, there was no formal appeal procedure open to Roberts, who claims to be the author of former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker's controversial pro-blue troop indoctrination program.

Roberts—who believes the nation is menaced by communism—gave a talk to the DAR convention April 19 after the Pentagon refused to approve the formal speech he had prepared. He attributed a Communist background to Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty—a charge Yorty denounced as ridiculous—and said Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen

Williams had leftist leanings.

Roberts was immediately suspended pending an investigation, which resulted in the action by the secretary of the Army.

Stahr said the Defense Department had decided the 46-year-old former paratrooper had "violated traditional standards of conduct for an officer of the U. S. Army."

The department said the finding "followed official inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the making of the speech and a study of the contents of the speech."

The order relieving Roberts from active duty is effective May 7. He will retain his Reserve commission.

Roberts, restricted to his post at Ft. Lee, Va., since the speech, has said he wants to tell his story before the Senate Armed Services subcommittee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., which has been investigating allegations that the Pentagon and State Department have muzzled anti-Communist speeches and efforts of military officers.

But Stennis said his subcommittee planned to take no immediate action. Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., an Army Reserve major general whose allegations triggered the muzzling inquiry, has said that he felt the Army should handle Roberts' case.

a glass and plastic dome approximately 22 feet in diameter.

The main banking floor will be 80 feet in diameter, and will feature two new drive up windows for customer use. An innovation will be the built-in walk-up window for pedestrian use, designed so that customers who do not wish to take the time to go inside may do their banking at side-walk level. Plans call for a new and spacious vault to be constructed. The present round door will be moved to this new vault and re-installed.

New safe deposit facilities will be provided along with two large coupon rooms so that customers may check their valuables in comfort and in privacy.

The Personal Loan Department will be incorporated into the design of the new buildings so that customers may make better use of the facilities of the bank. Officials said bookkeeping areas will be enlarged and new machines installed to provide quicker and more efficient services for customers.

Ample parking will be provided for those customers who wish to use the main lobby, spokesmen added.

During the razing and construction, First National will occupy nearby temporary quarters on N. Court St., in the store room formerly occupied by Schneider Furniture. The former store room is being completely renovated and refurnished to allow fast, convenient, and courteous service in both the commercial bank department and the installment loan department.

Air conditioning and heating equipment is being installed for the convenience and comfort of the patrons of the bank. Unique, too, will be an arrangement whereby access will be maintained to the safety deposit boxes throughout the entire construction period.

The new First National building will feature larger and more efficient office space for bank officers. This will enable them to render greater personal attention to customer needs.

The new bank will be completely air-conditioned. Lighting is of the latest design and will follow the circular plan of the bank. A music system will provide mood music, all in keeping with latest efficient banking methods.

General contractor for the work will be the Steward Construction Co., of Marion. Fixture work will be installed by the J. S. McLean Co., of Columbus. New vault equipment will be installed by the Diebold Co. of Canton.

Comic Pokes Fun at Steel Price Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took his price battle with Big Steel, poured it into a different mold, added some humor and stole the show at a newsmen's banquet Friday night.

He had some stiff competition from such professional entertainers as Benny Goodman, Gwen Verdon, Sally Ann Howes and the British comedian Peter Sellers.

The black-tie dinner, given by White House correspondents and news photographers in honor of Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain, was light on speeches, heavy on songs and laughter.

Kennedy was amused by Sellers' imitation of Macmillan and roared with laughter at comic Elliot Reid's takeoff on the press conference in which Kennedy tongue-lashed the steel companies for raising prices.

Near the end of the show, Kennedy turned the tables with his own parody of his denunciation of the steel price rise. He hooked it to the hike in the price of tickets for the banquet.

He said, "The sudden and arbitrary action to raise the prices by $2.50 over last year is wholly unjustified (and) not in the public interest. The American people will find it difficult to accept this decision. If not rescinded, it will have a serious effect on the economy of our city."

Ohio Campaign Pace Quickens

Rhodes Speaks Up At GOP Gathering

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The pace quickened as candidates headed into the homestretch this weekend in the race for their parties' nominations for various state offices May 8.

Probably the most noticeable speed-up in campaign activity was by James A. Rhodes, state auditor seeking the Republican nomination for governor.

Until late this week Rhodes appeared content to watch from the sidelines as Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy slugged it out for the Democratic nomination.

The auditor spoke Friday night at the 22nd installation banquet of the Lincoln-Douglas Republican Club after a fast swing into the Democratic stronghold of Cleveland.

Rhodes said Ohio Republicans must overcome "apathy, overconfidence and complacency" to win the general election in the fall.

DiSalle also had a full schedule. He spoke to four groups in Columbus Friday, was to move to Preble County today and is scheduled for appearances in the Capital City and Cleveland Sunday.

The governor presented a non-political speech at the 11th annual YMCA Youth in Government banquet, attended a Democratic rally and spoke to the Advertising Club and an employment security session at Ohio State University Friday.

His top opponent for the Democratic nomination, McElroy, was in Toledo, DiSalle's home town. McElroy told Lucas County Democratic precinct committee-men that polls show DiSalle would lose to any Republican opponent by a two-to-margin in a general election.

Hit-Run Raiders Plague Parisians

PARIS (AP)—Hit-and-run raiders machine-gunned and bombed a police station and blew up a newspaper office near Paris early today.

The attacks were the first of their kind in several weeks in France. Officials feared they may signal a new Secret Army Organization terror campaign in France.

Both the police station and newspaper office were heavily damaged in the nearly simultaneous raids in the town of Epiais, 25 miles west of Paris. One woman was injured slightly, and several police officers narrowly missed death.

Blue Hawaii Exotic Setting For CHS Junior-Senior Prom

In an exotic Polynesian atmosphere, some 100 enchanted couples enjoyed an evening of dancing on the make believe island of our 50th State.

The theme was Blue Hawaii. The occasion was the annual Junior-Senior prom held at Circleville High School gymnasium yesterday evening. Torches lighted the entrance and palm trees, jungle greens, nets, oriental fish and fountains formed the background for a truly South Seas adventure. Music was furnished by the Dick Welsh orchestra.

Sophomore "wahines" in mu mu gowns served "westernized" Polynesian foods.

Chaperones for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. George Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Snuffer, members of the Board of Education and faculty.

7 Nuns Hurt In Mishap on Expressway

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Seven teaching nuns—four of them from Cleveland—were hospitalized after their station wagon struck the median strip on the Detroit-Toledo Expressway and turned over three times Friday.

Most seriously injured was Sister Maria, 30, an elementary school principal in Buffalo, N. Y. She was listed in critical condition at St. Vincent Hospital.

The accident occurred nine miles south of Monroe, Mich., just inside the Michigan state line. The nuns were returning to Cleveland from the National Catholic Education Association convention in Detroit.

The vehicle was being driven by Sister Bonaventure Kalowski, 42, principal of St. Mary Elementary School in Cleveland, who was listed in fair condition. She told the Highway Patrol a gust of wind hit the car as it emerged from under an overpass and caused her to lose control.

The other injured, all at St. Charles Hospital, were: Sister Michèle, 46, principal of Byzantine Catholic Central High School in Parma, a suburb of Cleveland; Sister Alexandra, 21, a teacher in Buffalo; Sister Rose, 44, of Philadelphia; Sister Joseph, 40, principal of Holy Ghost Elementary school in Cleveland, and St. John Elementary school in Cleveland.

Father Admits Setting Fire To Kill 3 Tots

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A 38-year-old engineer, James Vincent Miller, admitted to police Friday he set fire to his own home, burning three of his five children to death.

His wife and the two other children escaped. They were treated for shock and injuries.

Robert Timlin, fire department inspector, said Miller admitted pouring two gallons of gasoline and several gallons of paint thinner and oil inside the house as his family slept.

The fuel was ignited in a basement hallway and the well of a stairway, where flames would break escape.

"I don't believe Miller has told his real motive," said police Capt. J. V. Fineran. "Miller said he was overworked. He said his wife had been complaining continuously about his being out of town and away from home, and he couldn't take it any more."

Timlin said Miller admitted to officers that he had a girl friend. He was held without charge.

Red China Deplores New U.S. A-Tests

TOKYO (AP)—Red China today accused the United States of conducting nuclear tests to prepare for war. It warned that the "Chinese people will eventually settle accounts with the U. S. aggressors for their blood debts."

"The U. S. authorities have hastily resumed the tests for no other purpose than to accelerate preparations for nuclear war," Peiping radio charged.

The broadcast accused President Kennedy's administration of "using nuclear weapons to conduct shameless blackmail, vainly hoping that the people of all countries will be intimidated and leave it free to commit aggression in various parts of the world."

Phenol Fumes Blamed for Marietta Fire

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP)—Fumes from a phenol processing unit failure may have caused the explosion and fire at the big Union Carbide Corp. plastics plant near here Friday in which one man was killed.

Plant Manager J. A. Palmer said the cause has not been determined definitely, but added that fumes in the phenol unit apparently ignited. Phenol is a chemical raw material used in manufacturing plastic.

Palmer also said no estimate of the damage has been set. He said it may take several days to determine just how much damage was caused. The fire burned for several hours, although under control within two hours.

Killed by falling debris was Edward W. Johnson Jr., 42, of Vienna, W. Va.

Another workman, William Beardmore, 36, of Vincent, Ohio, was injured by debris and hospitalized. Two other men were hospitalized, but Palmer said they both have a history of heart conditions and the hospitalization was a precautionary measure.

GIs Head for Home, Civilian Life between Aug. 1 and Aug. 11

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 110,000 reservists and national guardsmen will head for home and civilian life between Aug. 1 and 11, ending hitches of cold war active duty that began last October.

Many of the men will go back to service as part-time soldiers, attending weekly or monthly Reserve drills. All were called to active duty for up to one year.

President Kennedy announced April 11 that guardsmen and reservists called up by the Army, Air Force and Navy would be released during August, barring a major new international crisis.

The Navy has announced it will release 8,000 reservists and their 40 ships and 18 air squadrons on Aug. 1. The Air Force has not yet set release dates for the 27,000 men it mustered.

Berlin Policy Irritates Clay

General Says Kennedy Backs Him Fully

BERLIN (AP)—Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in Berlin, says he is not happy over a U. S. proposal to include East German Communists on an international authority to control Berlin's lifelines.

Clay said, however, that the idea of East Germany's presence on such a control authority could not be ruled out because of the possible alternatives, including resorting to force.

The retired U. S. Army general, who was instrumental in breaking the Russians' 1948-49 blockade of Berlin, was sent here again after the Communists began building their wall through Berlin last August.

Clay reportedly often advocated a tougher line toward the East Germans and their Soviet allies than officials in Washington would permit. Clay, now winding up his duties here, gave substance to these reports while speaking in a televised forum with German editors Friday night.

He said on some issues he went directly to Kennedy and the President always backed him up.

"There were instances, however, where I did not consider the proposals I had to make of sufficient importance to go directly to the President and of course these proposals then had to be measured against the recommendations and views of others," he said.

"In such instances there was usually a compromise answer, one a lot stronger than might have been the case, but quite frequently not as strong as I would like to have seen done," he said.

Clay did not cite any examples of these exchanges with Washington.

The sheriff said the man under investigation had been questioned previously but was released since he apparently gave a satisfactory account of his movements on the night of the slaying. Later, Cotterman said, it was learned the man was not home that night.

One of the cars was driven by Cleo Conrad, 42, Route 4. The other was operated by Larry Calton, 16, Route 4.

Mrs. Conrad suffered facial injuries, contusions of both knees, the left wrist and both shoulders. Calton received abrasions of the face and left arm and a sprained ankle. Both were taken to Berger Hospital.

Sheriff's Deputy Gene Kerns said the Conrad auto was headed north, the Calton vehicle south.

CALTON told Deputy Kerns he had stopped for a bread truck, then started to pull around before noticing the Conrad auto approaching from the opposite direction. Mrs. Conrad said she made an unsuccessful attempt to stop.

Both cars were heavily damaged, according to Deputy Kerns.

Bankruptcies Hard On Credit Unions

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ohio credit unions are straining under the burden of losses caused by wage earners who borrow money and then declare themselves bankrupt to escape creditors.

Claude E. Clarke, general counsel for Ohio Credit Union League, told the group's annual convention Friday a survey of credit unions in the Cleveland area showed each union lost about $2,000 a year that way.

"Whereas small business used to be the backbone (of bankruptcies cases), practically 90 per cent of the bankruptcies in 1961 were filed by wage earners," Clarke said.

BERLIN (AP)—Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative in Berlin, says he is not happy over a U. S. proposal to include East German Communists on an international authority to control Berlin's finances.

Clay said, however, that the idea of East Germany's presence on such a control authority could not be ruled out because of the possible alternatives, including resorting to force.

The retired U. S. Army general, who was instrumental in breaking the Russians' 1948-49 blockade of Berlin, was sent here again after the Communists began building their wall through Berlin last August.

Clay reportedly often advocated a tougher line toward the East Germans and their Soviet allies than officials in Washington would permit. Clay, now winding up his duties here, gave substance to these reports while speaking in a televised forum with German editors Friday night.

He said on some issues he went directly to Kennedy and the President always backed him up.

"There were instances, however, where I did not consider the proposals I had to make of sufficient importance to go directly to the President and of course these proposals then had to be measured against the recommendations and views of others," he said.

"In such instances there was usually a compromise answer, one a lot stronger than might have been the case, but quite frequently not as strong as I would like to have seen done," he said.

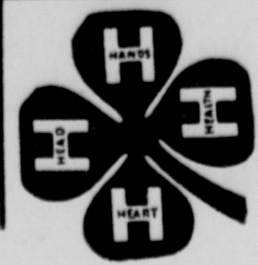

Clay did not cite any examples of these exchanges with Washington.

Selection of Planter Plates Important to Crop Stands

Most people ask at least five common questions while shopping for a carpet or rug. Each family will find different answers —ones that are "right" for their particular situation.

Which carpet fiber is really best?

There is no pat answer! Judge the finished product, not the fiber content alone. Consider the quality of construction. Density — how closely the carpet is woven — is a quality clue. Consider, too, the suitability of color and texture for the carpet's intended purpose.

Is there a man-made fiber that's better than wool?

Perhaps on some points. Wool is a classic carpet fiber because it offers a balance of what you want in carpet — resilience, durability, economy, and appearance. Other fibers may rate higher on one or more of these specific qualities. You must decide which factors are most important to you.

What about fiber blends?

Manufacturers have always blended carpet wool, using, for instance, one grade for resilience, another for luster. Now they often blend both man-made and natural fibers for the same reason — to take advantage of a specific quality of each fiber. One fiber may be added for strength, another for color, another for economy, although many man-made fibers are more costly than wool. In a blend, the carpet will be most like its predominant fiber.

Which fiber shows soil least?

The rate at which a carpet shows soil is largely determined by its color and design. Any very light color will naturally show soil more readily than a medium shade or a color combination.

It is true that man-made fibers have a lot of static electricity?

For every disadvantage, there is an advantage. Some man-made fibers are "hyrophobic", that is, they do not hold moisture as nat-

The seed plate size should be checked for each lot of seed corn, particularly when changing hybrids. Most seed corn has a recommended seed plate number for each bag of seed.

The shape and size of the corn kernels vary because of differences in hybrids. The graded sizes vary due to the grading procedures of the producers.

Kernel length in flat grades of corn are probably the most critical dimension in the selection of a seed plate for proper cell size.

IF THE cells of the plate are too short or the kernels they will be forced into the cell and become wedged and will not be knocked out by the knock-out roller. Other kernels will be cracked. Each cell failing to drop a viable kernel will reduce the stand 6 per cent for each revolution of a 16 cell plate.

If the cells are too long for the kernels to be planted, often times a cell will pick up two kernels on end. As these pass under the knock-out housing they may be broken or pushed out completely.

Extensive testing has shown that as high as 18 to 20 per cent of the kernels are cracked or damaged, when excessively large celled plates are used.

TO WORK ideally the kernels should be about 1-16 inch smaller than the cell opening.

The rotating speed or rpm is a critical factor in a cell fill accuracy of seed corn plates. The use of 24 cell plates instead of 16 will reduce the rpm of the seed plate by 33 per cent.

Seed box grading occurs when the plate holder groove is in the wrong position or when the cell length is too short, particularly when the seed corn has much more than a 4-64 inch variation in kernel length. The smaller kernels are sorted out in the box, permitting a layer of the longer and wider kernels to build up in the bottom of the seed box.

Repeated filling of the seed box increases the thickness of this layer which causes a reduction in cell fill. This causes a poorer seed drop than anticipated.

Seed box grading can be reduced by emptying the boxes after each second or third refill. Save this seed until the seed lot is planted, then select a different plate for these larger kernels.

Most people ask at least five common questions while shopping for a carpet or rug. Each family will find different answers — ones that are "right" for their particular situation.

Which carpet fiber is really best?

There is no pat answer! Judge the finished product, not the fiber content alone. Consider the quality of construction. Density — how closely the carpet is woven — is a quality clue. Consider, too, the suitability of color and texture for the carpet's intended purpose.

Is there a man-made fiber that's better than wool?

Perhaps on some points. Wool is a classic carpet fiber because it offers a balance of what you want in carpet — resilience, durability, economy, and appearance. Other fibers may rate higher on one or more of these specific qualities. You must decide which factors are most important to you.

What about fiber blends?

Manufacturers have always blended carpet wool, using, for instance, one grade for resilience, another for luster. Now they often blend both man-made and natural fibers for the same reason — to take advantage of a specific quality of each fiber. One fiber may be added for strength, another for color, another for economy, although many man-made fibers are more costly than wool. In a blend, the carpet will be most like its predominant fiber.

Which fiber shows soil least?

The rate at which a carpet shows soil is largely determined by its color and design. Any very light color will naturally show soil more readily than a medium shade or a color combination.

It is true that man-made fibers have a lot of static electricity?

For every disadvantage, there is an advantage. Some man-made fibers are "hyrophobic", that is, they do not hold moisture as nat-

Proper steps to follow in selecting a planter plate then are: select the recommended seed plate — pick out several of the longer kernels, fit these kernels into the

New System Due For Grading Beef

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

A new system of beef grading, designed to help the farmer get a more realistic price for his beef in terms of its retail value, goes into effect July 1 on a trial and optional basis. The proposal will get a year's trial before the USDA considers any changes in its present grading system.

The new system emphasizes (1) quality in terms of tenderness, juiciness, in flavor, and (2) carcass yield in terms of percentage of trimmed retail cuts.

Under the new plan graded meat still would be designated as prime, choice, good, standard commercial, utility, cutter and canner. In addition, it would carry a number from one to six, designating its cutability or yield.

A piece of beef grading Choice 1 would have little fat that would have to be trimmed off. A piece grading Choice 6 would indicate the other extreme.

BEEF industry authorities estimate that an animal high in both quality and meat yield would be worth from $30 to $70 more than one having the same quality but a large amount of fat.

U. S. Department of Agriculture spokesmen maintain the new system would offer the producer more pay for his cattle on the basis of their ultimate value at the retail consumer level. In addition, it would encourage the farmer to produce meat-type cattle with carcasses that combine high quality meat with thickness of muscling and a minimum of excess fat.

The system of appraising beef on quality and meatiness has the backing of considerable research. Many Ohio cattlemen will recall that one of the features of last year's Beef Cattle Day at The Ohio State University was a carcass demonstration on quality and yield in terms of percentage of trimmed retail cuts.

Spittlebugs Have Hatched In County

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Spittlebug hatch commenced in Pickaway County on or near April 19.

The hatch has been delayed some because of the unseasonable weather. The spittlebug population in Pickaway County is predicted to be very high and it will be economically sound to spray for their control.

The season is becoming very late and farmers are getting involved in many jobs now. It is highly advisable to apply Lindane as soon as possible.

Lindane will be effective even though hatch may not be complete and there will be sufficient residue present to kill newly hatched spittlebugs. Lindane should be applied at one pint of 20 per cent E. C. in 10 gallons of water per acre.

IF METHOXYCHLOR is used it would be advisable to wait until clover or alfalfa is between 6 to 8 inches tall. Methoxychlor may be used at 2 quarts of 25 per cent E. C. in 10 gallons of water per acre.

Grazing or harvest must be delayed 30 days with Lindane and seven days with Methoxychlor.

The lecturer requested that all members be prepared to participate in a literary program scheduled for the meeting.

It was announced that Booster Night would be held May 22.

Helen Hoover, lecturer, presented the following program: group singing of "The Quilting Party"; a reading of "The Arab Boy that Knew Christ" was presented by Helen Peters; each woman presented named her favorite flower; each man presented named a farm tool that helped him the most; a game of charades was played; group singing of "All Through the Night" and Will W. Fischer presented a German song.

Refreshments were served from a table decorated with spring flowers.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Rather than go to the extent of reprinting primary election ballots, Secretary of State Ted W. Brown advised the Knox County Board of Elections to use stickers on the ballots for the write-in election of a successor to a county commissioner.

The winner will succeed Robert D. Ransom, who died Thursday. His term was to have expired in January 1965.

New Richmond Farm Boy Is Proud He Could Make, Save $6 Million

NEW RICHMOND, Ohio (AP)—Even among self-made millionaires, John W. Haussermann has been a maverick.

He went halfway around the world to seek his fortune as a lawyer, but found it digging for gold.

He was a virtual unknown in his own country, but this stubby, barrel-chested Yankee was the American image to many in the Philippines for half a century. His nickname: "The Gold King."

The calendar now says he is 94. He is stepping down May 1—to make room for younger men, he says—as president and general manager of Benguet Consolidated, the Philippine gold, copper and chrome mining complex he started building in 1915.

His successor at Benguet will be Ralph W. Crosby, 55, who went to the islands as a young Canadian mine engineer. "Damn glad to get him, too, we were," said Haussermann.

The islands have been Haussermann's home since the Spanish-American War. His affection for the Philippines matches that for his native New Richmond, a small Ohio riverbank village near Cincinnati.

Haussermann had been a young lawyer and city attorney of Leavenworth, Kan., when the war came along and he enlisted in the 20th Kansas Volunteers.

When he went off to Manila in 1898, as a lieutenant, his bride Jessie, daughter of Wyoming's first territorial governor, Thomas Moonlight, wangled a ride out on an Army transport. The islands were their home for four decades.

Haussermann is still called "judge," noting his legal work in Manila. He was judge advocate of the provost guard, wrote a city charter for Manila and became assistant attorney general for the islands.

Private law practice came in 1902, and with it once came as a fee 5,000 pesos worth of shares in a parcel of mining claims. This was the start of his control of Benguet.

Benguet was just another island gold mine venture when he took it over for a Manila bank. By World War II he had 13,000 employees, was producing $15 million worth of gold alone yearly.

Haussermann has a favorite belief that "politics seems to be a part of just about everything." He said he saw early in the 1930's that Japan coveted the Philippines.

He said, "we only scratched the surface of the mineral wealth in the islands. Japan realized, as the United States generally never did, the great economic importance of the Philippines."

"Our gold and chrome reserves they naturally envied. They envied, too, our tillable lands, for we have a larger amount of productive soil than the entire Japanese island group can boast."

But he said he never expected Pearl Harbor, which caught him in the United States on a business trip.

John and Jessie Haussermann had come to the United States in 1938 to build a home in his native village, on farmland overlooking the Ohio River.

It could have been a house of retirement. Haussermann was in his seventies, and had set up family trust funds with his wife as trustee, using Benguet stock.

After the liberation, it was found the Benguet miners had been scattered and many of the supervisors had been in concentration camps or lost their lives.

Judge Haussermann had a three million dollar company credit in the United States, but in rebuilding, it went quickly.

He had to come back with his hat in his hand and borrow $1.5 million in New York. Jessie

Of the $6 million total, $3 million would go for a new student union and business administration building at UD. The remainder will go for the joint college, which at first would operate as a two-year college and graduate school.

COLUMBUS Ohio (AP) — A statewide drive to put a constitutional amendment liberalizing Ohio's Sunday closing laws on the ballot in November appears headed for success the president of Lawson Milk Co. said Friday.

William Howlett said his company's drive for signatures has netted about 325,000 names across the state just about 3000 under the minimum number needed. He said a sufficient number of signatures already has been obtained in 33 of the 44 required counties and added that he expects the signature drive to be over the top by next week.

Judge Haussermann had a three million dollar company credit in the United States, but in rebuilding, it went quickly.

He had to come back with his hat in his hand and borrow $1.5 million in New York. Jessie Haussermann sold the Benquet stock from the family trusts and with her husband raised $900,000 from their own funds. They kept only their own private stock in Benquet.

In all, they raised $5 million more and that got the mines going again, rebuilding slowly.

Jessie Haussermann died July 9, 1948, shortly after her husband had rushed back from the islands. The money they had chipped in to rebuild Benquet returned a year later after the federal government came up with $4.5 million in rehabilitation funds.

It wasn't until 1957, however, that Benquet could begin expanding, into copper and silver. They also started to drill for oil on a 261,000 acre section.

Haussermann grew up on a New Richmond farm. He said his father, a Cincinnati meat dealer, "made the mistake of thinking he could do better in New Richmond where he could raise the meat he sold."

Young Haussermann put himself through Cincinnati Law School, then headed west.

Now back in the big house he and Jessie built, the judge still probes the people, politics and economics he has studied for decades.

"I'm just a country boy. I only finished high school here in the town. But I can say I managed to make and save six million dollars. I think that's pretty good for a farm boy from New Richmond."

Blue Law Issue Heads for Ballot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A statewide drive to put a constitutional amendment liberalizing Ohio's Sunday closing laws on the ballot in November appears headed for success the president of Lawson Milk Co. said Friday.

William Howlett said his company's drive for signatures has netted about 325,000 names across the state just about 3000 under the minimum number needed. He said a sufficient number of signatures already has been obtained in 33 of the 44 required counties and added that he expects the signature drive to be over the top by next week.

NATO Army Still Growing

Optimism has pervaded the pentagon about the manner in which NATO allies of West Europe are working up into the collar.

France plans to reequip divisions it expects to be freed from Algeria. West Germany's ready military manpower is increasing. Italy and the Netherlands are both increasing their strength.

There are now 24 allied divisions in Europe ready for action compared to only 16 a year ago.

Prior pledges of many of the NATO nations to increase their participation were never implemented. Now that the heel-dragging period apparently is ended, NATO should be an increasing factor for stability by discouraging communist aggression.

NATO powers are on notice to increase their military budgets because the United States is going to phase out military aid to the prosperous Europeans. With the U. S. dollar outgo internationally exceeding the intake by more than $2.5 billion a year, our insistence upon European self-sufficiency is not simple prudence.

As West Europe's military strength grows, it will logically be a stabilizing factor to keep the cold war from erupting into more hot spots such as Berlin. This should ease the financial strain on Washington.

Turkey Has City Slickers, Too

A dispatch the other day revealed that Sulun "The Pheasant" Osman is going to call it quits. A city slicker from Istanbul, the Turkish metropolis, Sulun is one of those Turks who would have been called "unspeakable" by historian Thomas Carlyle.

He earned his nickname by his ability to break out of prison. In between times, he would prey upon country visitors by selling them a street car, or the ancient Galata Bridge across the Golden Horn.

Trams owned by the Istanbul Surface Transport Co. were his stock in trade. He would spy a visiting outlander at the railway station. They would have a few drinks and it wouldn't be long before Sulun would have offered to sell him a street car for $2,000.

The two would get aboard the "purchase", the gullible one would see the conductor collect the fares and he'd gladly pay over the money to Sulun — who dropped off at the next stop and disappeared.

Selling trams is a time-honored tradition in that part of the world. It happens occasionally in Cairo. The purchaser discovers his mistake when he attempts to show his authority by chasing hitchhikers off the running board. The sequel to one Cairo tram sale during World War II was a tent pitched on a vacant lot beside an Arabic sign reading: "Come inside, two piastres to see the man who bought the tram."

Of course the man inside, weeping copious but crocodile tears, wasn't the fellow who had bought the tram at all. He was just a Cairene who saw no reason why the original "fellow-ny" should go uncompensated.

Maybe the East isn't so mysterious after all — just practical. Anyway, best of luck to Sulun in his reformation. He's earned it for sheer nerve. As they say in the best public transit circles, only the brave deserve the fare.

Housewife Engineer

The housewife of 1962 finds knowledge of a different variety from that possessed by a housewife of a former era necessary for smooth operation of the home. She must, in fact be something of an engineer.

So many and varied are mechanical conveniences, improvements and gadgets that a woman who is not mechanically minded can really get things jammed up. If she pushes the wrong button, or shifts into reverse when full speed ahead is indicated, something is bound to happen.

The old saw about the bride who didn't know how to boil water is definitely dated. Today's bride knows that water is best if boiled in a pressure cooker, and that it takes perhaps a minute.

The old-fashioned cook who knew how many "pinches" of this and that to add to whatever she was making for best results, would be amazed if turned loose in a modern kitchen. Freezers, refrigerators, dishwashers, pressure cookers, automatic stoves, electric food mixers, garbage disposal units and, in fact the lowly faucet would send her into a state of at least slight and probably major, confusion.

Today's women are bright by whatever tests they are rated. But when an attempt is made to evaluate them as kitchen engineers, no mere male is competent to give them even preliminary tests. But there is no denying the fact that the jungle of mechanical equipment that is the modern kitchen was designed by men.

Perhaps they intentionally tried to fill the culinary department with contraptions the average man would be unable to master. If so, they succeeded admirably. The kitchen today is strictly a sphere of operations for the Kitchen Engineer.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP)—Nuclear fallout on business is likely to be delayed but its effects are to be reckoned with all the way from taxes to stock prices to bomb shelters.

Renewed testing of atomic weapons by the United States is expected to tighten world tensions. And the first result could be a chill on whatever talk there has been of a more peaceful co-existence.

In Wall Street that could put a damper on any renewed talk about a peace scare affecting prospects of defense industries with their large role in the present economic structure. If the unexpected had happened and the United States and Soviet Union had agreed to call off testing, peace scare talk would have been in the air. And stock prices react quickly—and sometimes illogically—to peace or war scares.

In Washington more world tension will firm up prospects for more, instead of less, spending for defense in the future—with all the usual side effects on taxes, Treasury deficits and inflation possibilities. This spending could help to delay further the date of any recession from the presently expanding economy.

And with the Soviets saying they will test again, too, the psychological effect on the American public must be reckoned with.

For one thing, the fallout possibilities might revive the furor over bomb shelters. This flourished last summer and fall when the first Soviet atomic tests on the heels of the Berlin crisis and the buildup in American defense efforts sent lagging sales of shelters rushing into a seeming booming market. And the government warned citizens to be wary of possible frauds.

Then the quieting of international tensions saw the wordy little over shelter needs and ethics slacken, and consumer interest ease up, too.

A whole new generation has known little else but international tensions and has come to look upon them as a way of life. Even so, any sharp increase in tension or in war possibilities has its effect on consumer psychology. It varies with individuals but attitudes and planning—whether to spend, go further in debt, or save—do change as fear of war increases or as hopes of peace seem even slightly brighter.

Herb also tells about the producer who, when he was a very, very poor lad in Brooklyn, vowed that if he ever made good, he would remember his childhood. Now he's written, directed, and produced a picture that cost ten million dollars—and a very, very poor picture.

An advertising man suddenly noticed that the kids in his neighborhood were treating him with a deference that bordered on reverence. Boys and girls began coming from blocks away to gaze at him in awe as he fumbled for his door key.

The explanation came when one little girl, bolder than the rest, tugged at his coat and demanded, "Are you really and truly a space salesman?"

In a debate in England's House of Lords, a tiresome member had been speaking for an hour. When he drew himself up to full height (5-foot-2) and declared, "And now the time has come to ask myself . . ." a voice from the opposite side of the hall interrupted him with, "Well, you're going to get a damn silly answer!"

Its here! — oral polio vaccine for all three types of polio virus, tested and approved by the Public Health Service.

Protected by Salk vaccine, you can still catch and pass polio virus to others. Oral vaccine will break this chain and may eliminate polio completely. But it's not yet available; meanwhile, depend on Salk vaccine.

Are you one of the 30,000,000 Americans under 40 who hasn't had one polio shot?

Watch out if you use ipecac syrup to make Junior upchuck in case of poisoning. Read the label carefully.

Don't mistake the fluid extract for the syrup. Fluid extract contains 14 times as much ipecac—enough to make your poison remedy a deadly poison itself!

Spring cleaning? Check attic, basement and storage closets. One out of five fires starts here.

Don't forget the garage. Ancient newspapers and magazines, discarded clothing and mattresses, old draperies, rags and paint can all make your home a tinder box.

Don't mothproof Baby's clothing with naphthalene mothballs and flakes. Naphthalene stays in clothes and blankets for years, ready to dissolve in the oil coating the skin of any baby who wears hand-me-downs.

Naphthalene can seep in through the skin to poison babies. Keep mothballs out of Junior's reach. They look like white candy.

Traveling this summer?

The Public Health Service now grades the sanitation on all railroad dining cars. Diners must display their current report card. Did you make an A, B or C?

Space travelers don't have to blast off weighed down by a large water supply. Chemists have designed a special reactor that burns waste, returns old water and manufactures an extra quart a day for each passenger. This extra water can be evaporated into space to cool overheated cabins.

Imagine! You become a regular rocketship reservoir!

Decent Elections Sought

By George Sokolsky

The President's Commission on Campaign Costs has issued an interesting but futile report on how to control campaign expenditures. The 1960 Campaign cost the Republican and Democratic Parties $19,900,000, which is far less than the fact because considerable amounts in any campaign are paid in cash and are not accounted for and cannot be proved.

The Commission proposes: "Where an individual or organization is subject to taxation, we recommend that the reasonable costs of these activities be declared a deductible expense for tax purposes."

That would be a sensible proposal if groups contributed only to absolutely defined campaign funds, not to so-called educational funds, which are a device to deceive. The Commission further proposes:

We recommend that individuals and private organizations—including corporations, labor unions, farm organizations, civic societies, and other appropriate groups — be encouraged as a matter of good citizenship to take part in and to make expenditures for bipartisan political activities (or bipartisan political activities where more than the two major parties benefit from such expenditures.)

This is nonsense. It is a renunciation of partisanship. Our political system is based upon two parties. The Communists permit only one party to exist. Partisanship is wholesome and is the only protection that a free people have against tyranny. Recently, I tried to explain to some youngsters that the reason I voted for Richard Nixon in 1960 was that I was a partisan. They did not seem to understand that at all.

The Commission also proposes a tax incentive for contributors on the ground that charitable, health, welfare, religious and educational groups are exempt. The argument is specious; however, I, like other taxpayers, am willing to take advantage of any kind of tax deduction at any time, but I do not want to contribute to the success of enemies or those who support ideas that I oppose.

The Commission wisely objects to the splintering of political organizations into many Committees, which is a current device to raise money for campaigns. However, their recommendation that the benefits be limited to political parties whose candidates for President and Vice President appeared on the ballot in 10 states is a curb upon the freedom of conscience.

I have salvaged my conscience on some occasions by voting for Norman Thomas and I once voted for Roger Babson because both the Republican and Democratic candidates were repugnant to me. That may happen to me in the 1962 Election in New York State.

It seems to me that this Commission has dodged the central issue, which is that campaign expenses run too high; that the candidate who has the money to buy more television time, competing for slots with tooth-paste and detergents, has a better opportunity than the man who has less money. It may be that the man with less money may be more suitable.

The Kennedy - Nixon Debates in the 1960 Campaign made sense. Nixon was defeated because he was non-aggressive, defensive, unable because of his office, to denounce or defend his President. Granted that Nixon was on a spot and that Kennedy belted him to the ropes; nevertheless, the voter had a chance to see both men in action.

Even this is not the cure. The British have it in their strict limitation of expenditures and if a nickel more is spent than the law permits the election is null, and the candidate's manager is liable to punishment. This is a good law. They do not bother there about the contributors, who might slip a bill under the table. They go after the candidate and his manager who spends that extra money which he has a right to have but not to spend on the campaign.

This is an honest and direct method of keeping elections decent. The President's Commission on Campaign Costs wanders all over the Earth seeking impractical remedies. For instance, the report says:

"A general misconception appears to exist about the effect and intent of the provision (in the law limiting contributions). From our study of the section, its legislative history, and the applicable court decisions, it is clear to us that no distinction is intended between corporations and unions with respect to political contributions and expenditures."

There is more than one member of the Commission who must have had his tongue in his cheek when he saw that paragraph. What about educational funds?

U.S. Science Exhibit Labeled Highlight of World's Fair

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Just about everyone here has agreed that what makes the Century 21 Exposition a world's fair is the U.S. science exhibit.

It should be great—at an outlay of $10 million. But it wasn't only money that went into the six acres of buildings and lagoons. It also displays a great deal of talent, imagination and learning.

The design of the science pavilion was by Detroit architect Yamasaki. His soaring Gothic arches, lacy grills, pools and fountains add up to a striking visual image—certainly one of the most beautiful public buildings anywhere.

First you enter a large hall with a few hundred other fairgoers and sit down on the thick carpet. On the side wall is projected a film depicting the history of science and its present status. Actually there are six films showing simultaneously, dazzling the mind with science's many faces.

Next you pass through a hall with graphic illustrations of what aroused man's curiosity: wind, sun, waves, lightning, etc. Another passageway illustrates how man's senses can be wrong. There are a series of optical illusions, including a whole Western town on a slant.

You come next to a large exhibit depicting the development of science — the major discoveries and what they mean. You go next to the Spacearium where you are hurtled through space by means of the world's largest projection screen, an eight-ton aluminum dome suspended in a theater. Asteroids, planets, suns and galaxies whiz over your head.

The methods of science occupy the next great hall. Here you can find the answers to such questions as: What makes fireflies light up? What does the microscope reveal about cultured ganglia?

The Department of Commerce, which sponsors the scientific splash, obviously aimed high. The layman might understand only a quarter or less of what is offered. But for the scientist and the science-minded youngster, the pavilion offers a feast for the mind.

NEW YORK (AP) — The television season may be approaching its official end, but it continues to show both variety and vitality. There are items of special interest every night of the next seven, ranging from drama on a controversial subject to previews of next season's programs.

ABC has a special, "60 Hours to the Moon" scheduled for Sunday evening (7:30-8:30) which is about preparations for our moon shots, while in conflict is the first part of Walt Disney's two-part adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." "The World's Greatest Robbery" also the first of a two-part show will be NBC's late evening program (10-11) and is about the 1930 Brink's holdup.

"The Devil and Daniel Webster" is a CBS special on Monday (8:30 p.m.) a repeat of a 1960 NBC program starring Edward G. Robinson and David Wayne in an adaptation of Stephen Vincent Benet's work.

Dick Powell's Tuesday night show (NBC 9-10) is "Savage Sunday" a pilot starring Nick Adams which has been sold as a weekly series "Saints and Sinners" next season.

Joey Bishop in an episode with Milton Berle will give viewers a preview of his next-season character (entertainer) on Wednesday evening (8:30-9), and Tallulah Bankhead will make one of her rare television appearances in "A Man for Oona" on CBS' Steel Hour (10-11).

Its here! — oral polio vaccine for all three types of polio virus, tested and approved by the Public Health Service.

Protected by Salk vaccine, you can still catch and pass polio virus to others. Oral vaccine will break this chain and may eliminate polio completely. But its not yet available; meanwhile, depend on Salk vaccine.

Are you one of the 30,000,000 Americans under 40 who haven't had one polio shot?

Watch out if you use ipecac syrup to make Junior upchuck in case of poisoning. Read the label carefully.

Don't mistake the fluid extract for the syrup. Fluid extract contains 14 times as much ipecac — enough to make your poison remedy a deadly poison itself!

Spring cleaning? Check a attic, basement and storage closets. One out of five fires starts here. Don't forget the garage. Ancient newspapers and magazines, discarded clothing and mattresses, old draperies, rags and paint can all make your home a tinder box.

Don't mothproof Baby's clothing with naphthalene mothballs and flakes. Naphthalene stays in clothes and blankets for years, ready to dissolve in the oil coating the skin of any baby who wears hand-me-downs.

Naphthalene can seep in through the skin to poison babies. Keep mothballs out of Junior's reach. They look like white candy.

Traveling this summer? The Public Health Service now grades the sanitation on all railroad dining cars. Diners must display their current report card. Did yours make an A, B or C?

Space travelers don't have to blast off weighed down by a large water supply. Chemists have designed a special reactor that burns waste, returns old water and manufactures an extra quart a day for each passenger. This extra water can be evaporated into space to cool overheated cabins.

Imagine! You become a regular rocketship reservoir!

Decent Elections Sought

The President's Commission on Campaign Costs has issued an interesting but futile report on how to control campaign expenditures. The 1960 Campaign cost the Republican and Democratic Parties $19,900,000, which is far less than the fact because considerable amounts in any campaign are paid in cash and are not accounted for and cannot be proved.

The Commission proposes:

"Where an individual or organization is subject to taxation, we recommend that the reasonable costs of these activities be declared a deductible expense for tax purposes."

That would be a sensible proposal if groups contributed only to absolutely defined campaign funds, not to so-called educational funds, which are a device to deceive. The Commission further proposes:

We recommend that individuals and private organizations—including corporations, labor unions, farm organizations, civic societies, and other appropriate groups—be encouraged as a matter of good citizenship to take part in and to make expenditures for bipartisan political activities (or bipartisan political activities where more than the two major parties benefit from such expenditures.)"

This is nonsense. It is a renunciation of partisanship. Our political system is based upon two parties. The Communists permit only one party to exist. Partisanship is wholesome and is the only protection that a free people have against tyranny. Recently, I tried to explain to some youngsters that the reason I voted for Richard Nixon in 1960 was that I was a partisan. They did not seem to understand that at all.

The Commission also proposes a tax incentive for contributors on the ground that charitable, health, welfare, religious and educational groups are exempt. The argument is specious; however, I, like other taxpayers, am willing to take advantage of any kind of tax deduction at any time, but I do not want to contribute to the success of enemies or those who support ideas that I oppose.

The Commission wisely objects to the splintering of political organizations into many Committees, which is a current device to raise money for campaigns. However, their recommendation that the benefits be limited to political parties whose candidates for President and Vice President appeared on the ballot in 10 states is a curb upon the freedom of conscience.

I have saved my conscience on some occasions by voting for Norman Thomas and I once voted for Roger Babson because both the Republican and Democratic candidates were repugnant to me. That may happen to me in the 1962 Election in New York State.

It seems to me that this Commission has dodged the central issue, which is that campaign expenses run too high; that the candidate who has the money to buy more television time, competing for slots with tooth-paste and detergents, has a better opportunity than the man who has less money. It may be that the man with less money may be more suitable.

The Kennedy - Nixon Debates in the 1960 Campaign made sense. Nixon was defeated because he was non-aggressive, defensive, unable because of his office, to denounce or defend his President. Granted that Nixon was on a spot and that Kennedy belted him to the ropes; nevertheless, the voter had a chance to see both men in action.

Even this is not the cure. The British have it in their strict limitation of expenditures and if a nickel more is spent than the law permits the election is null, and the candidate's manager is liable to punishment. This is a good law. They do not bother there about the contributors, who might slip a bill under the table. They go after the candidate and his manager who spends that extra money which he has a right to have but not to spend on the campaign.

This is an honest and direct method of keeping elections decent. The President's Commission on Campaign Costs wanders all over the Earth seeking impractical remedies. For instance, the report says:

"A general misconception appears to exist about the effect and intent of the provision (in the law limiting contributions). From our study of the section, its legislative history, and the applicable court decisions, it is clear to us that no distinction is intended between corporations and unions with respect to political contributions and expenditures."

There is more than one member of the Commission who must have had his tongue in his cheek when he saw that paragraph. What about educational funds?

U.S. Science Exhibit Labeled Highlight of World's Fair

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Just about everyone here has agreed that what makes the Century 21 Exposition a world's fair is the U.S. science exhibit.

It should be great—at an outlay of $10 million. But it wasn't only money that went into the six acres of buildings and lagoons. It also displays a great deal of talent, imagination and learning.

The design of the science pavilion was by Detroit architect Yamasaki. His soaring Gothic arches, lacy grills, pools and fountains add up to a striking visual image—certainly one of the most beautiful public buildings anywhere.

First you enter a large hall with a few hundred other fair-watchers and sit down on the thick carpet. On the side wall is projected a film depicting the history of science and its present status. Actually there are six films showing simultaneously, dazzling the mind with science's many faces.

Next you pass through a hall with graphic illustrations of what aroused man's curiosity: wind, sun, waves, lightning, etc. Another passageway illustrates how man's senses can be wrong. There are a series of optical illusions, including a whole Western town on a slant.

You come next to a large exhibit depicting the development of science — the major discoveries and what they mean.

You go next to the Spacearium where you are hurtled through space by means of the world's largest projection screen. An eight-ton aluminum dome suspended in a theater. Asteroids, planets, suns and galaxies whiz over your head.

The methods of science occupy the next great hall. Here you can find the answers to such questions as: What makes fireflies light up? What does the microscope reveal about cultured ganglia?

The Department of Commerce, which sponsors the scientific splash, obviously aimed high. The layman might understand only a quarter or less of what is offered. But for the scientist and the science-minded youngster, the pavilion offers a feast for the mind.

NEW YORK (AP) — The television season may be approaching its official end, but it continues to show both variety and vitality.

There are items of special interest every night of the next seven, ranging from drama on a controversial subject to previews of next season's programs.

ABC has a special, "60 Hours to the Moon" scheduled for Sunday evening (7:30-8:30) which is about preparations for our moon shots, while in conflict is the first part of Walt Disney's two-part adaptation of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island." "The World's Greatest Robbery" also the first of a two-part show will be NBC's late evening program (10-11) and is about the 1950 Brink's holdup.

"The Devil and Daniel Webster" is a CBS special on Monday (8:30 p.m.) a repeat of a 1960 NBC program starring Edward G. Robinson and David Wayne in an adaptation of Stephen Vincent Benet's work.

Dick Powell's Tuesday night show (NBC 9-10) is "Savage Sunday" a pilot starring Nick Adams which has been sold as a weekly series "Saints and Sinners" next season.

Joey Bishop in an episode with Milton Berle will give viewers a preview of his next-season character (entertainer) on Wednesday evening (8:30-9), and Tallulah Bankhead will make one of her rare television appearances in "A Man for Oona" on CBS' Steel Hour (10-11).

What already appears to be the most popular feature of the just-opened World's Fair in Seattle is the monorail, which whisks folk to and from the exposition grounds. However, this doesn't mean that most Fair visitors have one-track minds!

The monorail, which speeds swiftly above city street traffic, gives everybody a chance to enjoy riding high.

It's estimated U. S. women spent $125 million for their new hats this Easter. That's a pretty steep overhead expense!

The record books show that those nine straight losses rung up by Casey Stengel's Mets to start the baseball season tied the record. We always did say that old Casey was hard to match!

Camels have the longest eyelashes of any animal — Factographs. What a terrible waste on such a homely critter!

On reading that a new Chicago hotel will have a "frustration room" tensed folk can cool off by smashing lamps and ash trays against a wall. Milt, the sterling printer, says he thinks it's a bang-up idea!

KILLED BABYSITTER—Kenneth Slyter, 26, is pulled from car to be placed in a cell in Jackson, Miss., after admitting he picked up 15-year-old Sandra Misfield (inset) at her home to babysit and then drove her to a lonely road and killed her when she resisted his advances. He tried to kill himself by swallowing kerosene and DDT when officers found clues on his stolen car and came for him. Ironically, Slyter got in touch with his victim by mistake—he dialed the wrong telephone number.

'Conservation' Required for Soybean Aid

Soybean producers were reminded today that there are conservation requirements which must be met in order to qualify for price support on the 1962 soybean crop.

The national average support has been announced at $2.25 per bushel. The county rate, with premiums and discounts for grade and quality differences, will be announced later.

Spelling out the conservation requirement, Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said soybeans eligible for 1962 price support must be grown on a farm where the 1959-60 average acreage of conserving and idle land has been maintained.

The same requirement was in the 1961 soybean support program. It is designed to insure that any increases in soybean production will come from acreage used for crops that are in abundant supply rather than from land now in conserving uses or idle.

IN ADDITION, soybeans eligible for support must grade No. 4 or better, must contain not more than 14 per cent moisture, and must be in adequate storage.

The chairman explained that the 1962 soybean support will be made available through farm and warehouse-stored loans and purchase agreements, as in former years. Support on the 1962 crop will be available from harvesttime through January 31, 1963. The date of loan maturity will be May 31, 1963.

$2.1 Million Suit Filed Against Ex-Ironton Firm

IRONTON, Ohio (AP)—A suit asking judgment of $2,180,000 was filed Friday against the Henrite Products Corp., which moved its plant from Ironton to Morristown, Tenn., about two years ago.

The suit was filed by John Deem in behalf of other members of Local Union 479, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America. The suit alleged the company had broken a 1958 bargaining agreement between it and the union.

Dixiecrats Rap New Voter Bill

Carolina Senator Sees 'Political Pottage'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents of an administration-backed voter literacy test bill charged anew Friday it is a political play for votes.

In a statement opening the day's debate on the civil rights measure, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., appealed to senators of both parties not to let "America's constitutional birthright be sold for a mess of political pottage."

Ervin, chairman of the judiciary subcommittee that held hearings on the bill, said he deplored any wrongful denial of voting rights but maintained the measure was unnecessary and unconstitutional.

"Any election official in any Southern state who wrongfully denies any qualified Negro the right to vote will be taken to task," he said in his speech, "but he ought to be taken to task in a constitutional manner."

The bill provides that anyone with a 6th grade education shall be exempt from state literacy tests to qualify as a voter in congressional and presidential elections.

Proponents contend that in about 100 counties in the South racial discrimination in the administration of literacy tests keeps substantial numbers of Negroes from voting.

But Southern foes of the bill contend existing laws are adequate to prevent discriminatory practices and that the bill would usurp the constitutional rights of the states to fix voter qualifications.

Plenty of Ohio Citizens Confused About State's Financial Condition

By ART PARKS
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—No Ohio citizen needs be ashamed if he's confused about the state of the state's finances. He has plenty of company.

This is a campaign year and somehow political oratory seldom serves to make all issues crystal clear to the voters, especially when the main problem is as complex as a state operating budget.

Not often in recent history has the question of the state's financial health been such a burning one that it has been the subject of discussion between homeward-bound commuters who ask each other:

"Really, what is this all about? Is the state broke, or isn't it?"

Of course, they have been reading the charges and counter-charges of "financial chaos," that the state is "in the red," of deficits and deficiencies, of overcommitments and under-appropriations, of stinginess and wild spending.

Obviously, there's some exaggeration going on and some of the 'way-out' charges can be dismissed as campaign talk. The fact remains, however, that the state has had — and continues to have — a serious financial problem.

Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who insists the Republican-controlled legislature failed to appropriate enough money to provide adequately for key state programs, has this to say of Ohio finances:

"We are not in the red. We are not out of balance. Expenditures and revenues are within the estimates and within the appropriations. Those who say otherwise are trying to create a political climate which, in fact, does not exist. The state has paid its bills through March."

And DiSalle's finance director, James H. Maloon, chimes in with the prediction that the state will be able to make a $57-million school subsidy payment on time in May, that it will end the book-keeping year June 30 with no obligations outstanding and due — and with a modest cash balance.

In what was described as an "advisory" note in the most recent monthly financial statement 10 days ago, it was pointed out, however, that the state did not have the cash available to set aside in March the $19 million which was that month's share of the school subsidy payment due in May. It also was noted that the state had liabilities of $15.7 million for goods and supplies on order, but not delivered, on which payment is not yet due.

Add those together, deduct the $2.9 million cash money the state had available at the end of March and the figures show Ohio had an overcommitment of $32 million at the end of last month.

Yet, last month state Auditor James A. Rhodes, the likely GOP nominee for governor, asserted in a news release issued by his office: "If the current level of spending continues for the four remaining months of the fiscal year, the general revenue fund operations may close out the year approximately $70 million in the red."

And, this month, a similar release quoted him as saying: "Excessive spending linked with a curtailed flow of revenues considerably below estimates have brought general chaos to the state's financial picture."

Mark McElroy, DiSalle's chief rival for the Democratic nomination for governor who has been conducting a slam-bang campaign declared in a recent signed campaign statement:

"As governor, I propose to observe the constitution and laws of Ohio, which require that the state operate on a pay-as-you-go basis. Gov. DiSalle has chosen to ignore the law and roll up what will be a $50 million annual deficit... working with the legislature and the people, I will restore fiscal responsibility in Ohio."

Senate Finance Chairman William H. Deddens, Cincinnati Republican, asserted recently: "My guess is they'll (the DiSalle Administration) be in the red $25 to $50 million at the end of the fiscal year."

These are the leading estimates of DiSalle's political foes — all the way from $25 million to $70 million in the red.

Yet DiSalle and his finance director insists the state is not in the red — and won't be. No one — either an individual or a government — is in the red until he has bills due and payable which he doesn't have the money to pay, the governor maintains.

Both in the May 8 primary elections and in the Nov. 6 general election it will be necessary for Ohio voters to determine which candidates are giving the most accurate picture of Ohio's money situation.

While he was addressing his own party's candidates in his column in this month's issue of Democrats, Democratic Chairman William L. Coleman had some comments of perhaps general interest to all:

"During the course of any primary, the average voter must rely in a large measure on those statements made by the candidate. If those comments and remarks are not factual but are made only to attract attention, that candidate who utters them is not only disloyal to himself but also perpetrates a gross injustice on our way of life.

Statements about existing affairs must be made with a firm factual basis and not made in way of distortion and to confuse the voters... once the primary is over, wild and unfounded statements made by individual candidates find their way back into the general campaign where the party must accept the responsibility.

"We believe in a primary which gives the voters an opportunity to make a choice and yet this privilege carries with it a tremendous responsibility. Any candidate who abuses this privilege to speak out and who goes beyond the bound of propriety in discussing issues is not worthy of support."

"However, I regret to say that several of our candidates have conducted themselves in a manner not befitting Democrats and in a manner which in retrospect may give cause for regret by the individuals themselves."

3 New Positions At BIS Set Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Department of Personnel has approved three new administrative positions at the Boys Industrial School.

John R. Ferguson, chief of the division, said that the jobs will be those of administrators of three population divisions — academic, industrial arts and vocational and occupational. He said this is in line with the continuing reorganization of the institution following a probe of alleged poor working conditions at BIS.

Hines & Sons Cow Earns Top Award For Production

A Ton of Gold Certificate has been awarded a registered Jersey cow owned by H. C. Hines & Sons Linwood Farm, Route 2, Ashville.

The award went to their cow, Signal Design Dot, which produced 2,056 lbs. butterfat — more than a ton — from 39.34 lbs. milk in four years. The certificate was presented by The American Jersey Cattle Club from its headquarters in Columbus.

The production of Signal Design Dot during the four years of official testing far exceeds that of the "average" dairy cow in the United States. All tests were checked both by Ohio State University and the American Jersey Cattle Club.

The Ton of Gold award aids Jersey breeders in selecting cows with consistently high production over a long period.

Let's Make It American Is Theme for Elks Youth Day

Let's make it American! This is the theme for Elks National Youth Day which will be observed by Circleville and 2,000 other Elks lodges from coast to coast on May 1.

Pertinent Facts on Cancer

When considered in the light of national statistics as compiled by Drs. Ackerman and Ragetto, a city the size of Circleville should have about 57 cases of cancer. Most of these cases would not yet be producing symptoms. In fact, they would not yet be diagnosed in most instances.

Of these 57 hypothetical cancer victims, 27 are men and 30 women. And of the 30 women, six have breast cancer and five have cancer of the uterus. It is in these two areas that cancer most frequently strikes its female victims.

However, the villain cancer has graciously made a concession in these two areas — they are the most readily diagnosed in the early stages before any symptoms have developed.

In recognition of this fact, The American Cancer Society several years ago produced two films to educate the women of the nation to the possibility and the need for early diagnosis of cancer of the breast and of the uterus.

In the film, "Breast Self-Examination", the woman is instructed in the methods necessary to discover her own breast cancer while in the early curable stage. In the second film, "Time and Two Women", the value of periodic examination is brought out. The smear test for uterine cancer, developed by the late Dr. Papanicolaou, is described.

It would be interesting to know how many women have been able to save themselves from cancer by seeing these films and acting on the insight thus attained.

Loyalty Day Proclaimed by Mayor, VFW

Mayor Richard W. Penn has proclaimed May 1 as Loyalty Day in Circleville.

Mayor Penn has joined the local Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in urging citizens of Circleville to show their patriotism with a public display of American flags. They expressed the firm conviction that Loyalty Day affords the opportunity to proclaim faith in a democratic form of government.

Loyalty Day for May 1 of each year was proclaimed by public law in 1958 by the United States Congress and approved by the president.

VFW spokesmen said it has become more important each day that our citizens be reminded of the blessings of this country in order to be prepared to fight in inroads of communism at home.

It is the duty of each American to stand up for that which he believes and that which thousands of Americans have died for on battlefields throughout the world.

Temperatures were quite warm Friday night under mostly fair skies. Daybreak Saturday found most communities with temperatures in the 60s.

Some representative readings around the state included Cleveland 68, Toledo 64, Marietta and Cincinnati 65 and Columbus 61.

Continued warm and more humid air today will produce scattered showers or thundershowers over the state. Precipitation will continue in some portions tonight.

Somewhat cooler air will enter the western counties tonight, and for Sunday considerable cloudiness, cooler temperatures and occasional showers are likely for all of the state.

Willys Lands Order For 9,025 New Trucks

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Willys Motors Friday was awarded a contract by the Army for 9,025 quarter ton utility trucks known as the M-151 valued at $28,727,128. Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, disclosed.

Willys submitted the lowest bid after a nationwide solicitation of offers, Ashley said. The M-151 replaces the old jeep in military service.

Plenty of Ohio Citizens Confused About State's Financial Condition

By ART PARKS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — No Ohio citizen needs be ashamed if he's confused about the state of the state's finances. He has plenty of company.

This is a campaign year and somehow political oratory seldom serves to make all issues crystal clear to the voters, especially when the main problem is as complex as a state operating budget.

Not often in recent history has the question of the state's financial health been such a burning one that it has been the subject of discussion between homeward-bound commuters who ask each other:

"Really, what is this all about? Is the state broke, or isn't it?"

Of course, they have been reading the charges and countercharges of "financial chaos," that the state is "in the red," of deficits and deficiencies, of overcommitments and under-appropriations, of stinginess and wild spending.

Obviously, there's some exaggeration going on and some of the way-out charges can be dismissed as campaign talk. The fact remains, however, that the state has had — and continues to have — a serious financial problem.

Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who insists the Republican-controlled legislature failed to appropriate enough money to provide adequately for key state programs, has this to say of Ohio finances:

"We are not in the red. We are not out of balance. Expenditures and revenues are within the estimates and within the appropriations. Those who say otherwise are trying to create a political climate which, in fact, does not exist. The state has paid its bills through March."

And DiSalle's finance director, James H. Maloon, chimes in with the prediction that the state will be able to make a $57-million school subsidy payment on time in May, that it will end the book-keeping year June 30 with no obligations outstanding and due — and with a modest cash balance.

In what was described as an "advisory" note in the most recent monthly financial statement 10 days ago, it was pointed out, however, that the state did not have the cash available to set aside in March the $19 million which was that month's share of the school subsidy payment due in May. It also was noted that the state had liabilities of $15.7 million for goods and supplies on order, but not delivered, on which payment is not yet due.

Add those together, deduct the $2.9 million cash money the state had available at the end of March and the figures show Ohio had an overcommitment of $32 million at the end of last month.

Yet, last month state Auditor James A. Rhodes, the likely GOP nominee for governor, asserted in a news release issued by his office: "If the current level of spending continues for the four remaining months of the fiscal year, the general revenue fund operations may close out the year approximately $70 million in the red."

And, this month, a similar release quoted him as saying: "Excessive spending linked with a curtailed flow of revenues considerably below estimates have brought general chaos to the state's financial picture."

Mark McElroy, DiSalle's chief rival for the Democratic nomination for governor who has been conducting a slam-bang campaign declared in a recent signed campaign statement:

"As governor, I propose to observe the constitution and laws of Ohio, which require that the state operate on a pay-as-you-go basis. Gov. DiSalle has chosen to ignore the law and roll up what will be a $50 million annual deficit. . . working with the legislature and the people, I will restore fiscal responsibility in Ohio."

Senate Finance Chairman William H. Daddens, Cincinnati Republican, asserted recently: "My guess is they'll (the DiSalle Administration) be in the red $25 to $50 million at the end of the fiscal year."

These are the leading estimates of DiSalle's political foes — all the way from $25 million to $70 million in the red.

Yet DiSalle and his finance director insists the state is not in the red — and won't be. No one — either an individual or a government — is in the red until he has bills due and payable which he doesn't have the money to pay, the governor maintains.

Both in the May 8 primary elections and in the Nov. 6 general election it will be necessary for Ohio voters to determine which candidates are giving the most accurate picture of Ohio's money situation.

While he was addressing his own party's candidates in his column in this month's issue of Democrats, Democratic Chairman William L. Coleman had some comments of perhaps general interest to all:

"During the course of any primary, the average voter must rely in a large measure on those statements made by the candidate. If those comments and remarks are not factual but are made only to attract attention, that candidate who utters them is not only disloyal to himself but also perpetrates a gross injustice on our way of life.

Statements made by existing affairs must be made with a firm factual basis and not made in way of distortion and to confuse the voters. . . once the primary is over, wild and unfounded statements made by individual candidates find their way back into the general campaign where the party must accept the responsibility. . .

"We believe in a primary which gives the voters an opportunity to make a choice and yet this privilege carries with it a tremendous responsibility. Any candidate who abuses this privilege to speak out and who goes beyond the bound of propriety in discussing issues is not worthy of support. . .

"However, I regret to say that several of our candidates have conducted themselves in a manner not befitting Democrats and in a manner which in retrospect may give cause for regret by the individuals themselves."

3 New Positions At BIS Set Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Personnel has approved three new administrative positions at the Boys Industrial School.

John R. Ferguson, chief of the division, said that the jobs will be those of administrators of three population divisions — academic, industrial arts and vocational and occupational. He said this is in line with the continuing reorganization of the institution following a probe of alleged poor working conditions at BIS.

Hines & Sons Cow Earns Top Award For Production

A Ton of Gold Certificate has been awarded a registered Jersey cow owned by H. C. Hines & Sons Linwood Farm, Route 2, Ashville.

The award went to their cow, Signal Design Dot, which produced 2,056 lbs. butterfat — more than a ton — from 39.34 lbs. milk in four years. The certificate was presented by The American Jersey Cattle Club from its headquarters in Columbus.

The production of Signal Design Dot during the four years of official testing far exceeds that of the "average" dairy cow in the United States. All tests were checked both by Ohio State University and the American Jersey Cattle Club.

The Ton of Gold award aids Jersey breeders in selecting cows with consistently high production over a long period.

'Conservation' Required for Soybean Aid

Soybean producers were reminded today that there are conservation requirements which must be met in order to qualify for price support on the 1962 soybean crop.

The national average support has been announced at $2.25 per bushel. The county rate, with premiums and discounts for grade and quality differences, will be announced later.

Spelling out the conservation requirement, Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said soybeans eligible for 1962 price support must be grown on a farm where the 1959-60 average acreage of conserving and idle land has been maintained.

The same requirement was in the 1961 soybean support program. It is designed to insure that any increases in soybean production will come from acreage used for crops that are in abundant supply rather than from land now in conserving uses or idle.

IN ADDITION, soybeans eligible for support must grade No. 4 or better, must contain not more than 14 per cent moisture, and must be in adequate storage.

The chairman explained that the 1962 soybean support will be made available through farm and warehouse-stored loans and purchase agreements, as in former years. Support on the 1962 crop will be available from harvesttime through January 31, 1963. The date of loan maturity will be May 31, 1963.

$2.1 Million Suit Filed Against Ex-Ironton Firm

IRONTON, Ohio (AP) — A suit asking judgment of $2,180,000 was filed Friday against the Henrite Products Corp., which moved its plant from Ironton to Morristown, Tenn., about two years ago.

The suit was filed by John Deament in behalf of other members of Local Union 479, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastics Workers of America. The suit alleged the company had broken a 1958 bargaining agreement between it and the union.

Soviet Envoy's Wife Says 40 Is Good Age for Woman

WASHINGTON (AP)—The slender smiling wife of the new Soviet ambassador makes no bones about the fact that she's 40—and happy about it.

"I don't feel my 40 years," said Irina Nikolaevna Dobrynin, apple-cheeked and pretty. "I think it is a good age for a woman. You can understand so much more than when you are younger. You think more deeply. Yes, it is much better."

She came to this conclusion at a reception she and her 42-year-old husband, Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin gave for a group of eight Russian professional women on a month's tour of this country.

Although they've been in their Washington post only five weeks, the Dobrynins have spent seven of the last 10 years in this country, first on his assignments in Washington and later when he was an undersecretary of the United Nations.

An everyday kind of English is something she has learned in her years in this country.

"When I first came in 1952 I couldn't understand a word although I had studied it in Moscow," she said.

Her only child, Elena, 14, wants to teach English, she said with mingled amusement and pride. The girl is now in school in Moscow, living with Mrs. Dobrynin's widowed mother.

Both the ambassador and his wife hold engineering degrees. They met as students at the Moscow Aviation Institute.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Clark and family, Charlotte, N. C., visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Meinfelter, Route 3, parents of Mrs. Clark. While here they also attended the funeral of Mr. Cliff Scott, Waverly, uncle of Mrs. Clark.

Dear Abby: Phone Advertising Hit

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My telephone just rang for the third time in two hours, and that was the straw that broke the camel's back. After dropping my work and nearly breaking my neck over the children's toys, I was asked to buy a certain product. What about starting a campaign to stop this sort of thing? When I want to buy something I'll go to the store, and I'm sure not going to buy the product that is advertised by someone who called me on the phone and disturbed my work.

IRENE

DEAR IRENE: Telephone solicitation gives employment to many who cannot leave their homes. But although the callers are guilty themselves, I think the sponsors of such intrusive advertising make more enemies than friends.

DEAR ABBY: Would it look funny for a bride to wear flat-heeled shoes at her wedding because, if she wore high heels, she would be taller than the groom?

TALL ONE

DEAR TALL: Unless your future husband is loaded with confidence, better wear the flats and let him be taller. (Anyway, who looks at a bride's feet when her face is glowing with happiness?)

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of six children. They are all under 12, so I give quite a few birthday parties during the year. I also give little Easter parties. Valentine parties and Halloween parties. My problem is this:

When we send the invitations we always state clearly: "The party is from 1:00 P.M. until 5:00 P.M.—Saturday afternoon." Now every time I have a party about half the children just stay around until I take them home. Do you think this is right? Maybe I am

Boss of Angels Still Boiling After Rhubarb in Tiger Den

DETROIT (AP)—Bill Rigney's fury didn't abate until long after his Los Angeles Angels had been trounced and another Tiger Stadium rhubarb and missile barrage had ended.

In order, he took on the umpires, Detroit's unruly fans and sports writers Friday night. The fans and sports writers received a verbal barrage. Umpire Ed Hurley had his toes stepped on during a shoving match in the sixth inning after a hit-batsman incident ignited a wild scene.

Rigney and two of his players were ejected by Hurley and plate umpire Ed Runge.

It started when a ball thrown by pitcher Joe Nuxhall hit batting champion Norm Cash in the back while the Detroit Tigers were adding to their lead in a 13-4 victory.

Runge warned Nuxhall and fined him $50. The pitcher angrily threw the ball into the stands. Hurley ejected him. Rigney argued vehemently. Hurley ejected him. A fan stepped in the field and had to be restrained from tugging with Nuxhall. Chuck Tanner threw a towel from the Angel dugout. Runge ejected him.

In the outfield, Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner ran for cover. They were pelted from the stands by assorted missiles, mostly empty beer cans. When they returned to their positions they wore batting helmets for protection. It was similar to the bombardment of New York Yankee home run king Roger Maris two weeks ago.

In the clubhouse after the game, Rigney fumed.

"Those fans are terrible," he yelled. "Why can't the police do something about it? It's awful. It's dangerous."

"Were Thomas or Wagner hit with anything?" a sports writer asked.

"What do you mean by that?" bellowed the angered Angel manager. "What do you mean? What does it matter if they were hit or not? Somebody can get killed out there. It should be stopped."

In another room, Runge gave his side of the rhubarb that set off the wild display. He said:

"In my opinion, Nuxhall threw at Cash. I went out and fined him $50 in accordance with league rules. I turned my back and he threw the ball into the stands."

"Hurley saw it and threw him out. Rigney came out and deliberately—I said deliberately—stepped on Hurley's feet. And Hurley pushed him away and threw him out. I threw Tanner out because he threw a towel from the dugout."

Liston Chilled By New York

Boxing Permit Denied No. 1 Challenger

NEW YORK (AP)—The Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title bout is a fight without a home today. But there seems to be no shortage of cities willing to adopt the multimillion-dollar orphan.

The New York State Athletic Commission ran the controversial, widely ballyhooed fight out of town Friday by refusing Liston a license, citing his record and choice of associates. Until the commission's ruling, the match had been slated for Yankee Stadium or Polo Grounds in September.

Championship Sports, Inc., the promoters, immediately began a shopping around for another location. A spokesman said Philadelphia, Liston's home town, Chicago, Los Angeles and Seattle, currently staging a world's fair, were possibilities.

Indications from officials in Philadelphia, Chicago and Seattle were that those cities would welcome the bout.

Douglas Hayden, California athletic commission chairman, said the state's stand on Liston was "pretty much like New York."

"The history of Liston's past associations form a pattern of suspicion," the New York commission statement said, "and wrong people do not disengage easily."

Among the past associations the statement named were Frank (Blinky) Palermo of Philadelphia and John Vitale and Frank Mitchell of St. Louis, all of whom have long arrest records.

Liston himself has been arrested nine times and convicted twice — of first-degree robbery in 1950 and of assault for intent to kill in 1956. He served three years of a 5-year sentence in Missouri State Penitentiary on the robbery conviction and was given a nine-month workhouse sentence on the assault charge.

"The New York decision doesn't concern me," Liston said in Philadelphia. "I'll go on training for the fight as if nothing had happened."

At his training camp in Highland Mills, N.Y., Patterson expressed sympathy for Liston. "What's he done? He's already served his time. I feel sorry for him."

Patterson's attorney, Julius November, contended that the commission's action technically washed out the contract signed March 16. November pointed out that the contract gave the champion the right to pick the site, that he picked New York and Liston now was unable to fulfill the terms.

Tiger Thinclads Take Eight Firsts But Drop Meet

Circleville dropped a dual track meet, 67-51, at Washington C. H. yesterday in spite of eight first place performances by the Tiger thinclads.

Skip Hanson and Vern Reichmanus again capped double firsts for the Roundtowners.

Hanson, running with a pulled leg muscle, easily took the 100 yard dash in 10.6 and breezed to a win in the 220 in 23.1. He placed third in the broad jump.

Tiger track coach John Current said that he had planned to start Hanson in the 440, but held him out because of his game leg.

REICHMANUS heaved the shot 45'4" to take the event. Howard Fletcher turned in his best performance of the year putting the shot over 43-feet to take second. Reichmanus' discus throw of 119-feet gave the Tigers another first.

Jimmie Wood led the field in the 120 high hurdles — winning with a time of 16.7. In the low he ran a close second. He is still running with a cast on his left arm.

Bob Waple took the 880, finishing about eight yards ahead of his nearest rival.

Luther Johnson, running the mile for the first time did the four laps on the 440 yard oval in 5.17, winning handily.

George Trego tied for first in the high jump with the Blue Lions' Thomas. Both jumpers cleared the bar at 5-feet-10-inches but failed to top the bar when it was raised an inch.

Donovan Chalks Fourth Win For Newest Bosses--Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Donovan, who's made more stops than a local bus, may have found himself a home with the Cleveland Indians.

The tall, veteran right-hander, one of four players the Indians acquired when they dealt fiery Jimmy Piersall to the Washington Senators, is one of the principal reasons the Indians are leading the American League.

He chalked up his fourth victory in an unbeaten season with a solid, six-hit 7-2 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Friday night that kept the Indians a game ahead of the pack.

In the others, all night games, Detroit punished Los Angeles 13-4, New York outlasted Washington 10-8, Chicago beat Boston 7-4 and Kansas City routed Baltimore 14-5.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 7-2, San Francisco edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4, Milwaukee nipped Houston 2-1, St. Louis belted Cincinnati 14-3 and Philadelphia outslugged the New York Mets 11-9.

Donovan, who worked with five minor league teams and has divided his time in the majors with the old Boston Braves, Detroit and the Chicago White Sox, now looms as the key figure in the Piersall trade.

The soft-spoken Donovan, who specializes in pin-point control and breaking stuff, had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth, but home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Zoilo Versalles spoiled his bid.

By that time, however, his new mates had staked him to a 7-0 lead and the 34-year-old veteran had plenty of working room. A two-run homer by Woody Held in the second inning was the big blow.

One of the season's better rhubarbs and a $50 fine enlivened the Detroit-Los Angeles affair. It started when Joe Nuxhall hit Tiger Norm Cash in the back with a pitched ball. Plate umpire Ed Runge immediately walked to the mound and informed Nuxhall he was fined $50.

Nuxhall threw the ball into the first base stands. Second base umpire Ed Hurley thumbed him out. Angel Manager Bill Rigney began a wild protest. Out he went, too. And before it was over, Chuck Tanner, also of Los Angeles, got the gate.

Angel outfielders Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner later were subjected to a shower of beer cans and other rubbish from the stands when they took their defensive positions.

A seven-run second inning got the Tigers off and running. Billy Bruton, Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito each drove in three runs. Jim Bunning (2-0) won it and Ken McBride (1-3) was the loser.

New York established a 9-3 lead in the top of the fourth, then spent the rest of the evening fighting off rallies by the Senators, who lost their 10th straight. Clete Boyer, Roger Maris and Elston Howard had homers for the Yankees. Boyer's with the bases loaded. Bill Stafford (1-2) got the victory and Pete Burnside (1-1) lost.

O'Toole Out To Tame Pesky Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jim O'Toole who beat every club in the National League except St. Louis last season, hoped to get 1962 off to a good start today as the Cincinnati Reds continued their series with the Cardinals.

O'Toole (2-0) also was out to join the Cardinals' Curt Simmons and teammate Bob Purkey in the forefront of National League pitching. Simmons equaled Purkey's season record as the Cards routed the Reds 14-3 Friday.

Cincinnati pitching and hitting both broke down in that game. Things got off to a confused start when shortstop Leo Cardenas missed the team's plane in Cincinnati. He reached St. Louis just in time to get a single as lead-off batter.

But Eddie Kasko, up next, hit into a double play and for three innings the game was a pitchers' duel between Simmons and loser Juey Jay (2-3).

The Cards got five runs on four hits and two errors in the fourth. Three of the hits were doubles and four of the runs were unearned — resulting from a bad throw by Jay and a dropped fly by Wally Post.

Post hit his sixth homer in the next inning, which with a ninth-inning homer by Frank Robinson — his first this season — took some of the sting out of the defeat. The other Red run came in the eighth on Hank Foiles' double and Cookie Rojas' single.

If the fourth inning was bad for Cincinnati, the seventh was worse. In that inning, the Cardinals clobbered three pitchers for eight runs on eight hits — three of them doubles.

All told, the Redbirds got 15 hits off Jay, Johnny Klippstein, Bob Miller and Howie Nunn.

Kline's Blast Gives Tigers 4-3 Victory at Lancaster

Dick Kline blasted a ground rule triple with the bases loaded in the last inning yesterday at Lancaster to give the Circleville baseball team a 4-3 win over the Gales.

The Tigers trailed 3-0 going into the final frame. Stewart banded a single to start the rally. Then White, the Lancaster hurler, walked the next two men, Tom Copland and George Reeser. David Greene squeezed in one run with a bunt. David Bass fanned, and Fred Moore walked to load the bases again with two away.

Kline was the next man up. He drove the ball through the fence to drive in three runs. The hit would have been a home run except for the ground rule limiting balls hit past the fence to three batters.

In the bottom of the seventh Lancaster got two men on base but was unable to score.

Dick Fisher, Tiger baseball mentor, said that his team's defense

Syracuse Looks For First Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Mets and Senators have been having their woes and the story's no different for the International League farm teams they share, the Syracuse Chiefs. After three days of action, the Chiefs are still looking for their initial victory.

Jacksonville completed a three-game sweep of the Chiefs, on southpaw Steve Hamilton's 20th hit, 2-0, Friday night backed by Ulus Alvarez' two-run homer.

Toronto's veteran righthander Steve Riddick put a stop to Columbus' two-day power show, firing a one-hitter as the Leafs won their first, 5-0. Johnny Powers spoiled Riddick's no-hit bid when he poked a single in the fourth.

NCAA Hands Probation To Colorado

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association put the University of Colorado on two years probation Friday, reprimanded the University of Missouri and declined to reduce the three-year probation against New Mexico State University.

Colorado was banned from taking part in postseason bowl football games or appearing on the NCAA football television series. No other sports are involved.

The Colorado penalty stemmed from a slush fund operated by Everett Grandelius, football coach until his dismissal March 17.

The NCAA censured and reprimanded Missouri—without penalties—for giving a prospective athlete an interest-free loan.

The president and vice president of New Mexico State asked for reduction of its probation received last Jan. 11 for violating a rule to advise a college or junior college when an athlete is attracted from other schools.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the Colorado infractions included improper financial assistance during 1959-61 to 21 students football athletes; football coaches causing grant-in-aid assistance to three athletes to be reduced or terminated; and members of the football staff arranging for medical expense payments to two athletes or their immediate families.

Two of the Tiger errors allowed runs to score.

George Reeser went all the way for Circleville. He fanned one, walked one and gave up six hits. The only extra base hit the gales tagged him for was a double by Kitchen.

White the starting hurler for the Fairfield Countians allowed only three hits and fanned 11 in the game. But he was the victim of his own wildness, giving up seven walks. Three of the walks came in the crucial seventh inning when Circleville scored all of their runs.

Donovan Chalks Fourth Win For Newest Bosses--Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dick Donovan, who's made more stops than a local bus, may have found himself a home with the Cleveland Indians.

The tall, veteran right-hander, one of four players the Indians acquired when they dealt fiery Jimmy Piersall to the Washington Senators, is one of the principal reasons the Indians are leading the American League.

He chalked up his fourth victory in an unbeaten season with a solid, six-hit 7-2 triumph over the Minnesota Twins Friday night that kept the Indians a game ahead of the pack.

In the others, all night games, Detroit punished Los Angeles 13-4, New York outlasted Washington 10-8, Chicago beat Boston 7-4 and Kansas City routed Baltimore 14-5.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 7-2, San Francisco edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4, Milwaukee nipped Houston 2-1, St. Louis belted Cincinnati 14-3 and Philadelphia outslugged the New York Mets 11-9.

Donovan, who worked with five minor league teams and has divided his time in the majors with the old Boston Braves, Detroit and the Chicago White Sox, now looms as the key figure in the Piersall trade.

The soft-spoken Donovan, who specializes in pin-point control and breaking stuff, had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth, but home runs by Harmon Killebrew and Zoilo Versalles spoiled his bid.

By that time, however, his new mates had staked him to a 7-0 lead and the 34-year-old veteran had plenty of working room. A two-run homer by Woody Held in

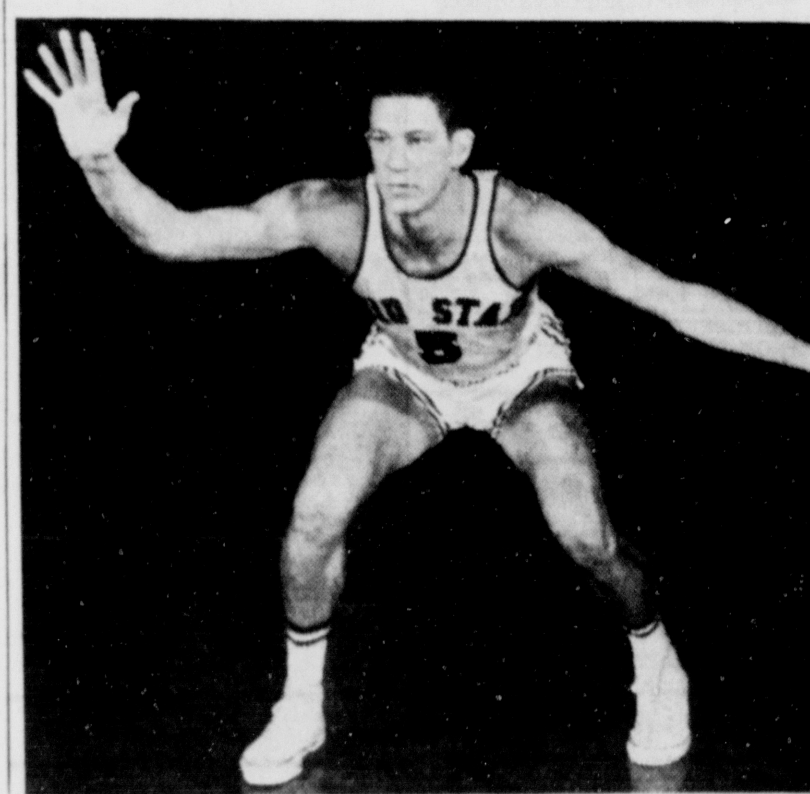

PCC Roundup Golf Date Set

Tee off time for the Men's Spring Roundup is noon Wednesday, Tom Cassidy, PCC golf pro, announced yesterday.

Ticket sales are being handled by Cassidy at the pro shop.

The Mens Golf Association has selected the prizes which are now on display at the pro shop.

The Yankees have hit 100 or more home runs a year 38 times.

HONDO — Fiery John Havlicek will be one of the Fabulous Buckeye Seniors scheduled to meet a local All-Star team May 5 in the Circleville High School gym. The past season Buckeye captain will be joined by All-American Jerry Lucas, Mel Nowell, Bobby Knight and Gary Gearhart. The game slated to start at 2:30 p. m., is being sponsored by the Circleville Booster Club.

One of the season's better rhubarbs and a $50 fine enlivened the Detroit-Los Angeles affair. It started when Joe Nuxhall hit Tiger Norm Cash in the back with a pitched ball. Plate umpire Ed Runge immediately walked to the mound and informed Nuxhall he was fined $50.

Nuxhall threw the ball into the first base stands. Second base umpire Ed Hurley thumbed him out. Angel Manager Bill Rigney began a wild protest. Out he went, too. And before it was over, Chuck Tanner, also of Los Angeles, got the gate.

Angel outfielders Lee Thomas and Leon Wagner later were subjected to a shower of beer cans and other rubbish from the stands when they took their defensive positions.

A seven-run second inning got the Tigers off and running. Billy Bruton, Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito each drove in three runs. Jim Bunning (2-0) won it and Ken McBride (1-3) was the loser.

New York established a 9-0 lead in the top of the fourth, then spent the rest of the evening fighting off rallies by the Senators, who lost their 10th straight. Clete Boyer, Roger Maris and Elston Howard had homers for the Yankees, Boyer's with the bases loaded. Bill Stafford (1-2) got the victory and Pete Burnside (1-1) lost.

O'Toole Out To Tame Pesky Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Jim O'Toole who beat every club in the National League except St. Louis last season, hoped to get 1962 off to a good start today as the Cincinnati Reds continued their series with the Cardinals.

O'Toole (2-0) also was out to join the Cardinals' Curt Simmons and teammate Bob Purkey in the forefront of National League pitching. Simmons equaled Purkey's season record as the Cards routed the Reds 14-3 Friday.

Cincinnati pitching and hitting both broke down in that game.

Things got off to a confused start when shortstop Leo Cardenas missed the team's plane in Cincinnati. He reached St. Louis just in time to get a single as lead-off batter.

But Eddie Kasko, up next, hit into a double play and for three innings the game was a pitchers' duel between Simmons and loser Joey Jay (2-3).

The Cards got five runs on four hits and two errors in the fourth. Three of the hits were doubles and four of the runs were unearned — resulting from a bad throw by Jay and a dropped fly by Wally Post.

Post hit his sixth homer in the next inning, which with a ninth-inning homer by Frank Robinson — his first this season — took some of the sting out of the defeat. The other Red run came in the eighth on Hank Foiles' double and Cookie Rojas' single.

If the fourth inning was bad for Cincinnati, the seventh was worse. In that inning, the Cardinals clobbered three pitchers for eight runs on eight hits — three of them doubles.

All told, the Redbirds got 15 hits off Jay, Johnny Klippstein, Bob Miller and Howie Nunn.

"TWIST ALL NIGHT" — Louis Prima and June Wilkinson twist way out in this scene from "Twist All Night" which starts Wednesday for its first-run showing in Circleville at the Starlight Cruise-In Theater.

Massey Changes Roles Fast: TV Doctor to Abe Lincoln

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Whether he plays Abe Lincoln, Dr. Gillespie or just Raymond Massey, he's a man of forceful opinions.

Recently he was doing all three. Massey went directly from playing the elder doctor in the successful "Dr. Kildare" television series back to his old role as the Great Emancipator. He was performing in a small but important sequence for "How the West Was Won" in Cinemas.

Then he went right back to the tiny screen, and, as Raymond Massey, he made it clear he has great respect for television. He took issue with FCC chairman Newton Minow's much-repeated view of television's "vast wasteland."

"I think it is a misconception that has been perpetuated by television columnists," said Massey. "Television is not a wasteland. It is the greatest medium yet devised for entertainment, and it is doing a damn good job of it.

"There is no reason why education should be forced on television viewers, not in the prime night-time hours, at least. They want to relax and be entertained. I certainly do, and I find a great deal of relaxation and enjoyment by watching the set, which I do a great deal."

Massey came prepared with a list of his favorites, and they may surprise you. He even termed his medical competitor "Ben Casey" "a very good show; it has its ups and downs, but so do we."

Here are some of the others: "Car 54, Where Are You?" — "delightful fun"; Walt Disney's World of Color — "Engrossing and educational"; To Tell the Truth; The Defenders; Dick Powell Show — "as good an anthology as we've ever had on television"; The Untouchables — "I don't see any harm in shooting up gangsters."

Also: the Fred Astaire anthology; The Law and Mr. Jones; 20th Century — "As educational a show as you'd want to see"; Meet the Press; the joint and separate news shows of Huntley-Brinkley; Bob Newhart; Cain's Hundred; 87th Precinct; Jack Benny; Wag on Train; Bonanza; Twilight Zone.

Massey even had kind words to say for Mister Ed, What's My Line, Lassie and Tennessee Ernie — "they're all entertaining, and I'm no lowbrow."

Oh, yes, he also considers Dr. Kildare a "good show."

His list comes to 20 hours a week "of good, solid entertainment. I don't think any other medium has ever approached that output. This is no wasteland."

Chicago Police Push Hunt for Trio's Slayers

ELMWOOD PARK, Ill. (AP) — Chicago and Cook County police have joined in the search for the gunmen who shot two brothers and their woman companion to death as they made a frantic attempt to escape.

Phillip Scavo, 36, a minor hoodlum; his brother Ronald, 30; and Lydia Abshire, 28, were shot in pre-dawn darkness Thursday on a quiet residential street of this Chicago suburb.

The three were in Phillip Scavo's sports car when the attack occurred. Police said Phillip, in a frantic attempt to escape, had rammed the car into reverse and sped across a lawn into the side of a house.

Phillip's second wife, Barbara, a tall, blonde night club vocalist who uses the name of Nikki North, flew back from a Cleveland, Ohio, engagement after she was informed of his death.

She was questioned by police. Afterward, Mrs. Scavo tearfully told reporters her husband may have been slain because of his efforts to promote Miss North's career. She did not elaborate, but it is known that some of Chicago's hoodlums have night club, recording and juke box interests.

Police also were looking into the possibility that the killing may have resulted from a quarrel over burglary loot. Phillip Scavo had a record of 15 arrests, mostly on suspicion of burglary, and one conviction.

William Astor paid $7,000 for the 1876 Kentucky Derby winner only two weeks before the race. The horse was Vagrant.

ROMANTIC DRAMA — Susan Hayward and John Gavin co-star with Vera Miles in "Back Street", a romantic drama, which starts tomorrow with "Twenty Plus Two" at the North Auto Theater.

Cincy Area Sprinter Chalks Mile in 4:19.7

CINCINNATI (AP) — Andy Schramm, a Deer Park High School senior, Friday night ran the mile in 4:19.7, fastest ever recorded for a high school miler in Ohio.

Achieved in the annual Lockland Relays, his mark does not constitute an official record. The state record of 4:24.1 was set by Mike Gallagher of Toledo Libbey in the 1961 state high school track meet at Columbus.

Segregationists Plan One-Way 'Freedom' Buses

New Orleans Group Ready To Ship Any Willing Negro North

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—One-way "Freedom Bus" rides to the North and West for dissatisfied Negroes will resume on a mass scale Monday, a director of the sponsoring New Orleans Citizens Council said Friday night.

"We're ready to send as many as want to go," said the director, George Singelmann.

Singelmann said Trailways officials had promised to make available as many buses as necessary shortly after noon Monday. He said he had deposited $1,409 for each of two or three buses expected to go.

He said he wouldn't know just how many would leave until they showed up at the bus terminal. He insisted that more than 100 Louisiana Negroes were waiting to make the journey.

Two Negroes left for New York City Friday night. They were Shelby Williams, about 27, and his wife, Singelmann said the Williams couple didn't want to wait until Monday because their rent in New Orleans was to run out tonight.

Singelmann said those who requested to leave by bus Monday included a couple and their 10 children who were going to Los Angeles; a woman with three children to Oakland, and dozens of others for Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

Singelmann said he had also reserved 25 seats on the Southern Pacific train Sunset Limited leaving New Orleans for California Monday night.

Mayor John Houlihan of Oakland said, "It is a sad commentary on humanity that these white Southerners would take this action to get rid of unfortunate Negroes."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York said the motives in the Freedom Bus program were beneath and beyond contempt. Nevertheless, said Wagner, temporary emergency relief would be made available "to these refugees from oppression and discrimination within our own land."

In Philadelphia, Thomas Burress, executive director of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said, "These people will come here assuming there's gold in the streets, when actually job conditions, along with housing conditions, are almost as bad, if not as bad, as they are in New Orleans."

Manuel Kaufman, deputy commissioner of the Philadelphia Welfare Department, said if any families did arrive, the city could not do more than provide them with surplus food since there are residency requirements for public assistance.

Back-to-Back Nuclear Tests Fired in Nevada, Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has fired back-to-back nuclear tests thousands of miles apart—one underground in Nevada, the other a mushrooming burst over the Pacific.

The Pacific shot Friday was the second in the new American series of atmospheric tests. According to the terse Atomic Energy Commission announcement, it was pretty much a repeat of Wednesday's test.

The device, dropped from a plane in the vicinity of Christmas Island shortly after sunrise, brightened the sky over the central Pacific.

The detonation was described as in the intermediate range—having more explosive power than 20,000 tons of TNT but less than 1-million tons. This would make it 5 to 25 times more powerful than the World War II atomic bomb that blasted Hiroshima.

The Nevada test was the 30th underground blast to be reported by the AEC since the series was begun after the Soviet Union broke the test moratorium last fall with some 40 blasts in the atmosphere.

The AEC said the underground shot was a low-yield explosion—less than the force of 20,000 tons of TNT.

It was the first time shots were detonated at widely separated test sites on a single day but not the first time a day's testing included two or more blasts. The tests in the atmosphere are the first by the United States since Oct. 30, 1958, just before the voluntary moratorium went into effect.

It was understood that the Pacific explosions had to do with checking out a device still in the development stage rather than a finished atomic weapon.

The planes used were probably

Segregationists Plan One-Way 'Freedom' Buses

New Orleans Group Ready To Ship Any Willing Negro North

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—One-way "Freedom Bus" rides to the North and West for dissatisfied Negroes will resume on a mass scale Monday, a director of the sponsoring New Orleans Citizens Council said Friday night.

"We're ready to send as many as want to go," said the director, George Singelmann.

Singelmann said Trailways officials had promised to make available as many buses as necessary shortly after noon Monday. He said he had deposited $1,400 for each of two or three buses expected to go.

He said he wouldn't know just how many would leave until they showed up at the bus terminal. He insisted that more than 100 Louisiana Negroes were waiting to make the journey.

Two Negroes left for New York City Friday night. They were Shelby Williams, about 27, and his wife, Singelmann said the Williams couple didn't want to wait until Monday because their rent in New Orleans was to run out tonight.

Singelmann said those who requested to leave by bus Monday included a couple and their 10 children who were going to Los Angeles; a woman with three children to Oakland, and dozens of others for Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

Singelmann said he had also reserved 25 seats on the Southern Pacific train Sunset Limited leaving New Orleans for California Monday night.

Mayor John Houlihan of Oakland said, "It is a sad comment on humanity that these white Southerners would take this action to get rid of unfortunate Negroes."

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York said the motives in the Freedom Bus program were beneath and beyond contempt. Nevertheless, said Wagner, temporary emergency relief would be made available "to these refugees from oppression and discrimination within our own land."

In Philadelphia, Thomas Burress, executive director of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said, "These people will come here assuming there's gold in the streets, when actually job conditions, along with housing conditions, are almost as bad, if not as bad, as they are in New Orleans."

Manuel Kaufman, deputy commissioner of the Philadelphia Welfare Department, said if any families did arrive, the city could not do more than provide them with surplus food since there are residency requirements for public assistance.
